Solo pianist Emile Pandolfi has been described as having “monster” technique, an unparalleled musical sensitivity and a passionate soul. His arrangements of popular standards, Hollywood and Broadway hits have been called incredibly romantic. But equally important to him, he’s also been described as a really funny guy with a great sense of comedic timing.

Trained in classical piano from the age of five, Pandolfi’s early heroes were Vladimir Horowitz and Artur Rubinstein; his favorite composers are Chopin and Rachmaninoff. Unique to the world of piano, Pandolfi applies his life-long classical education to his arrangements of songs by Lloyd-Webber, Rogers & Hammerstein, and Mancini. The result is an emotional experience that keeps his fans coming back for more. With sales of his CDs of show tunes and pop standards approaching three million, he is ranked as one of today’s best-selling pianists in the alternative music industry.

Pandolfi spent six years as the “piano-man” at The Comedy Store in Los Angeles - hence his comedic timing. In his live show, Emile Pandolfi in Concert, he combines his love of laughter (all family-friendly) with his passion for music; unlike Victor Borge, however, the music is always the centerpiece of the concert. Pandolfi gently moves his audience from emotion-packed arrangements and listenable classics to giggles and guffaws, then back again. “I’m always gratified to hear people tell me at the end of a concert that they laughed, they cried, they were touched emotionally.” Proof, he says, that “true art doesn’t have to be stuffy!”
